

Building the Right Attitude

Typically students get too caught up with the grades, percentages, points and the entire marking system. Always remember that if you study with the aim of acquiring knowledge, the grades will be brighter by default.

However, if your focus is only on your grade or points earned, there is a chance you might get the grades, but you will miss out on acquiring comprehensive knowledge in the particular subject.

Always approach study with an attitude toward increasing learning, and you will never have to worry about your grades. Knowledge trumps grades and percentile marking for long term value and success.

For study tips or to subscribe to our podcast visit: <http://LSSedgewood.edu>